

GREETINGS FROM CBL

SPRING 2022 NEWSLETTER

Community-Based Learning Program

NEW COMMUNITY-BASED LEARNING FACULTY:

- Jayme Waldron (Biological Sciences)
- Boniface Noyongoyo (Anthropology/Sociology)

WELCOME!

CURRENT CBL COURSE LISTINGS W/ FACULTY:

- SOC 375: Social Strat (Kristi Fondren)
- ART 340: Art Education (Maribea Barnes-Marsano)
- NRE 321: Resolution of Environmental Problems (Samuel Colvin)
- ANT 301/SOC 345: Social Statistics (Boniface Noyongoyo)
- ART 343: Introduction to Potters Wheel (Allora McCullough)
- ART 446: Intermediate Potters Wheel (Allora McCullough)

GOOD LUCK THIS SEMESTER!

BENEFITS FOR TEACHING AND STUDENTS:

Faculty report numerous benefits from teaching CBL courses. They appreciate the opportunity to have a meaningful impact on students and community, to be innovative and creative in their teaching, to create lasting collaborative relationships between community and institution, and recruit and retain student involvement. Likewise, students also find CBL courses to be beneficial. They appreciate opportunities to connect key course concepts with relevant real-world experiences; to increase their connections to the community, peers, and professors; and, to develop a network of professional and community contacts.

CURRENT HAPPENINGS:

Allora McCullough and her ART 343/446 classes are holding their annual Empty Bowls event this semester. Empty Bowls 2022 is scheduled for Friday, April 22, in Pullman Square. Exact time of the event TBD as we are still organizing details. Stay tuned for more details!

We love hearing from our CBL faculty please send us your success stories at cbl@marshall.edu

RECENT HAPPENINGS:

- Tijah Bumgarner and her AD-PR Video Production class did amazing things in the community this past Fall semester!

"This class is always a favorite to teach because students are introduced to their surrounding communities and have an opportunity to make a difference for local organizations. By curating clients who are making a difference in their communities, students learn the technical aspects of filmmaking while providing a service that may not be afforded to the organizations otherwise." Students in her class made videos for Marshall's Counseling Program, Stepping Stones, and Faith in Action.

Counseling • Stepping Stones • Faith in Action

- Marie Archambault altered her course to become an online CBL course this past Fall!

"I use CBL in this course to help the students gain an appreciation of how government and nonprofit accounting differs from what they have encountered with for-profit entities. These organizations provide so many essential services; and from an accounting standpoint, it is really important for students to understand how these services are financed and how the costs must be allocated to demonstrate to citizens and donors that the resources being provided are used appropriately."

Read more: www.marshall.edu/cbl/cbl-recent-happenings

INFORMATION ABOUT CBL OPTION FOR INDIVIDUAL STUDENTS:

Do you have an exceptional student? Consider CBL option for a student or group of students instead of the entire class. Contact us for more information www.marshall.edu/ctl/community-engagement/cbl

OUR CONTACT INFORMATION:

Sandra Kemper:

- 304.696.3577
- kempers@marshall.edu

Kylie Slusser:

- cbl@marshall.edu

Center for Teaching and Learning
One John Marshall Drive
Huntington, WV 25755

www.marshall.edu/cbl